DYNAMO v RED BULLS – 2008 LEAGUE BOXSCORES

HOUSTON DYNAMO 1, NEW YORK RED BULLS 0

May 31, 2008 – Robertson Stadium

Scoring Summary:

HOU--Ching 3 (Cameron 1, Holden 2) 68

The Dynamo claimed a 1-0 victory in the first meeting between the teams this season, May 31 at Robertson Stadium. Missing three key starters, including striker Juan Pablo Angel and playmaker Claudio Reyna, the Red Bulls held out for three-quarters of the match. But the Dynamo -- missing key starters of their own through international duty, injury and suspension -- finally broke through in the 68th minute. A ball was swung out wide to Geoff Cameron, and he curled a rolling, early cross into the goal area where Brian Ching came sliding in to poke home.

Aug. 24, 2008 – Giants Stadium

Scoring Summary:

NY--Angel 8 (van den Bergh 3, Magee 1) 8

NY--Richards 1 (Stammer 3) 26

NY--Magee 4 (Jimenez 1) 60

The Red Bulls rolled to a 3-0 victory against the Houston Dynamo on Aug. 24 at Giants Stadium. The home side rolled out to an early lead. Mike Magee chased down a ball in the left corner, laid it back to Dave van den Bergh, and his pinpoint cross found Juan Pablo Angel at the top of the six for an easy header and his eighth goal on the campaign. Dane Richards doubled the lead in the 26th minute. Set free by a long ball down the right flank from Seth Stammer, the speedy winger cut into the area and lashed a low drive home inside the far post for his first goal of 2008. The Red Bulls put the game away on the hour mark. Diego Jimenez picked out Magee with a masterful ball from his own half, and the young striker raced in alone on Dynamo 'keeper Pat Onstad, cut to his left in the penalty area and drove the ball home for his third goal in as many games, a career-long scoring streak.

TACTICS

Dynamo boss Dominic Kinnear has maintained his classic 4-4-2 scheme throughout the season, with little variation, even if a change of personnel. The back four is steady with Richard Mulrooney on the right, Bobby Boswell and Eddie Robinson in the center and Wade Barrett on the left. Patrick Ianni could figure centrally and Craig Waibel is an experienced campaigner at right back. Ricardo Clark provides the screen in front of the back four, with Brian Mullan and Brad Davis giving the drive from wide midfield positions, and after playing more as a forward early in the season, Dwayne De Rosario has reprised his attacking midfield role. Stuart Holden can also fill that spot, or either wide midfield role. Up top, Brian Ching will be partnered by Nate Jaqua, or by Kei Kamara, both of whom were signed midseason to add to the attacking options. Rookie Geoff Cameron could come off the bench at any number of positions, including wide in the midfield, central defense, or even an out-and-out striker.

HOW THEY QUALIFIED

For the first time in club history, the Houston Dynamo won the Western Conference regular season crown, taking 53 points from their 30 matches. After going winless in six games to start the season, the Dynamo turned it on over the second half, having lost just once in league play since June 12, ending the season with a nine-game unbeaten streak. They took over the top spot in the division for good on Aug. 16.

STADIUM

Robertson Stadium (capacity: 32,000).

The Dynamo finished with the best record at home in MLS this season, losing just once in 15 games, while taking 34 of a possible 45 points. The lone home loss came June 12, a 2-0 defeat by New England; the Dynamo are 7-0-2 in the nine home games since. The Dynamo scored 30 goals in their 15 home games, tied for the third-best mark in the league, allowing just 14 in those home games, also tied for third-best in MLS.

ATTACK

The Dynamo scored 45 goals in their 30 games, tied for the third-best attack in the league. They were shut out nine times over the course of the season, four times in the opening six games, and then again three times in a four-game stretch in June/July. The Dynamo's season-high of four goals in a game came in back-to-back wins, 4-3 vs. Real Salt Lake and 4-0 against Chivas USA, both at home.

DEFENSE

For the second year in a row, the Dynamo had the best defensive record in MLS, allowing just 32 goals in 30 games, a goals-against-average of 1.07. The Dynamo tied for the league lead with 10 defensive shutouts, two in the final four games of the season, and three in consecutive games July 3-Aug. 2.

CURRENT FORM

The Dynamo come into the playoffs having lost just once since June 12, a span of 17 games, and unbeaten in their last nine. The Dynamo have lost just three games in their last 27 in all competitions.

COACH

Dominic Kinnear. Now in his fourth season in charge, he followed the team from San Jose, where he took over as head coach in 2004. He has taken the Dynamo to victory in the MLS Cup Final in each of their two seasons in south Texas. Named MLS Coach of the Year following the 2005 campaign.

KEY ADDITIONS THIS SEASON

Center back Bobby Boswell, the 2006 MLS Defender of the Year, was picked up from D.C. United and slotted into the back four. Rookie Geoff Cameron has filled a number of roles over the season. Kei Kamara was acquired from the San Jose Earthquakes and provided attacking depth. Forward Nate Jaqua returned to the Dynamo at midfield after a short stint in Austria.

KEY ABSENCES

The Dynamo have a clean bill of health entering the postseason and, as much of the year, have no real injuries to report.

KEY MAN

Dwayne De Rosario. After missing a fair bit of the middle third of the season, mainly to international duty, the Canadian has begun to round back into form over the final month of the season, with a pair of goals and three of his four total assists on the year. Still, his six goals and four assists are single-season lows since moving to his attacking midfield role.

TACTICS

Juan Carlos Osorio has become known as a tactician, changing his tactical scheme and lineup to match his opposition on the day. As the season has wound down, he has mainly stayed with four in the back -- in front of Danny Cepero, who will start the playoffs with just two league appearances to his credit. Chris Leitch will likely be at right back, with Andrew Boyens and Diego Jimenez in the center and Kevin Goldthwaite on the left. Gabriel Cichero could also feature in central defense, and Jimenez at left back. Seth Stammler is a certainty in a deep midfield role, likely alongside Juan Pietravallo. Jorge Rojas has played as an attacking midfielder, though he's also been deployed wide on the left. That's usually the domain of Dave van den Bergh, though he's also figured centrally down the stretch. Dane Richards has played wide on the right, and also up top. Mike Magee could partner with Juan Pablo Angel or play as an underneath forward. And Mac Kandji and Matthew Mbuta have been given starts in wide attacking roles if Osorio's looked for more forward thrust.

HOW THEY QUALIFIED

The New York Red Bulls became the last team to qualify for the MLS Cup Playoffs, claiming the final wild card spot when D.C. United failed to win in the final game of the season. The Red Bulls finished with 39 points, fifth place in the Eastern Conference, two points ahead of United. The Red Bulls used a midseason makeover to vault themselves back into the playoff chase, but won just twice over their final nine games of the season.

STADIUM

Giants Stadium (capacity: 26,500)

The Red Bulls ended with 30 of a possible 45 points from their 15 home games, the fifth-best record in the league. Their 30 goals scored at the Meadowlands was also tied for the third-best mark in the league. The Red Bulls had a four-game home winning streak before losing two in a row, a run stopped in the home season finale, a 3-1 win against Columbus. On the road, however, the Red Bulls won just once (with seven draws), the poorest road record in MLS.

ATTACK

The Red Bulls scored 42 goals in their 30 games, the eighth-best attack in MLS. The Red Bulls were shut out five times on the season, including back-to-back games Aug. 30-Sept. 6 (D.C. United and Chicago). They scored three goals or more in a game on four occasions -- all over the final two months of the season.

DEFENSE

The Red Bulls conceded 48 goals in their 30 matches, the third-most in MLS. They conceded 15 goals over their final five matches on the campaign. They recorded seven shutouts on the season, including three in consecutive games, Aug. 17-30 (vs. Toronto, Houston and D.C. United).

CURRENT FORM

The Red Bulls have won just once in their final six games, losing four. Since a stretch of seven games, where they conceded just four goals, they have allowed 20 in that six-game span. Their three-game losing streak from Sept. 18-Oct. 4 was their longest of the season.

COACH

Juan Carlos Osorio. The man who took over the Chicago Fire midway through last season and led them to the Eastern Conference Championship moved to the club where he was once an assistant coach in the offseason. He returned to MLS from Millionarios of his native Colombia; he was also once an assistant coach at Manchester City in England.

KEY ADDITIONS THIS SEASON

The Red Bulls underwent a midseason transformation that saw a number of key players arrive. Venezuelan international playmaker Jorge Rojas, the second-most capped player for his country, signed in July, as did fellow countryman Gabriel Cichero. He was joined on the backline by Mexican youth international Diego Jimenez. Argentinean Juan Pietravallo brought bite to the midfield. Just before the roster deadline, two attacking players were signed from USL clubs, Macoumba Kandji and Matthew Mbuta.

KEY ABSENCES

The Red Bulls lost two starters when defender Jeff Parke and goalkeeper Jon Conway were suspended by MLS for violation of the league SABH policy.

KEY MAN

Juan Pablo Angel. The Colombian international followed his 19-goal campaign in his first year in MLS with 14 this season -- after missing a fair portion of the first half of the year through injury. He has scored six goals in the Red Bulls' last seven games.
